Friends of Seedtime,

Tann Bondye

It's how Haitians say "wait for God"

It's the subject of our latest radio ad that airs on RTG FM in Haiti's northwest. Plus, Frantz is working to air our discipleship messages on other FM stations in the Port-de-Paix, Haiti region if affordable.

All of our feedback from callers and the station owner says the people like the ads. "Tann Bondye" is the 4th ad aired so far. We have produced 6 ads total and the remaining ads will air in the next few weeks.

Besides the radio ads Frantz has been behind the microphone regularly, teaching God's Word and providing Bible reading calendars to callers. He's handed out about 300 calendars already and is asking us to send more.

Recently, Frantz was teaching on a subject hard for Haiti to hear, concerning the history of Haiti and it's Biblical implications. Frantz was greatly encouraged when a high school history teacher caught him on the street afterwards to say how happy he was that someone finally addressed the subject publicly and biblically.

Citing continuing gang problems, Haiti's Presidential council voted themselves in for another year with yet another plan to get security in place for elections late next year.

It is not always clear why, but Port-de-Paix has had several protests that shut down parts of the city, canceling or postponing a few of Frantz's activities.

A murder outside of the school where Frantz was about to teach was last Saturday's challenge. Protests over a power grab concerning taxis in Port-de-Paix started another protest. And for the "twist of the week" Haitians were told one gang fought another gang. Normally the gangs have worked together in alliances avoiding gang-on-gang interactions so this is either new... or a carefully scripted story by Government security forces to turn gangs against each other. Either way, it's disruptive.

Slogging through this environment, Frantz keeps sending God's message and keeps diligently rescheduling valuable teaching time.

Thanks for walking with Seedtime

Peter the Apostle
He sure was intent on getting us to remember something...

2 Peter chapter 1

¹² So I will always remind you of these things, even though you know them ...

¹³ I think it is right to refresh your memory as long as I live in the tent of this body, ...

¹⁵ And I will make every effort to see that after my departure you will always be able to remember these things.

Do you even know what Peter was so focused on?

Was Peter's work wasted on us?
